J&J KART SETS WORLD ENDURANCE RECORD

Texas Fun Center Raises $5,000 With 24-Hour Non-Stop Performance

IRVING, TEXAS -- Endurance records are among the most coveted of all competitive awards.

Ask Mr. Guinness for confirmation.

Thus it was big news for celebration at J&J Amusements when Mike Rader, co-owner of Beltline Station in Irving, Texas, notified the company that four drivers set a world go kart endurance record at his Family Fun Center earlier this summer using a J&J Can Am go kart.

The crew of a pit boss, talented mechanics and four drivers (see photo) alternating every hour broke the existing record listed in the Guinness Book of World Records by 40.94 miles. The requirements included 24 hours of straight driving with a 5.0 hp motor (Honda).

The J&J go kart was modified only by removing the steel band bumper to decrease weight.

SEE US AT THE TRADE SHOWS THIS FALL!

While many Family Fun Centers are preparing to button up for the winter, manufacturers like J&J Amusements are just getting prepared for their crucial season -- the Fall Trade Shows. This annual ritual starts this month and continues into October and November.

Sometimes referred to as "Going to Market," this is the season when manufacturers of equipment, show their wares and negotiate contracts for the upcoming season.

For Family Fun Center owners, it is a time to catch up on the trends in the industry and gather ideas and compare notes.

Things start Sept. 17 in New Orleans at the Fun Expo -- a show directed specifically towards Family Fun Centers. Only in its second year, this show was a big hit in Atlanta last year and crowds should be bigger this time around.

Mike Rader, co-owner of Beltline Station, works hard at marketing techniques in competitive Dallas area. Here he shows off painted J&J kart featuring radio station.

J&J GO KART SETS WORLD RECORD IN TEXAS

"The motor never stopped for 24 hours" Mike Rader reported. "In 24 hours of straight driving, our only problem came when an axle needed repair."

"The idea for this event came from a couple of our employees who heard about a go kart endurance record and checked with Guinness. They confirmed the record."

Always looking for a new marketing angle, Rader decided to turn the assault on the record into a fund raising idea. Naming it "Karts for Kids", four drivers solicited contributions for each lap completed and donated them to three Dallas/Ft. Worth children's hospitals. The event raised over $5,000.

The promotion received television and newspaper coverage in the Dallas market for Beltline Station, a family fun center with ABC batting cages, miniature golf, game arcade and the go kart track. Beltline purchased the J&J go karts in 1991.

"We closed our track on Sunday night from 6 p.m. to Monday 6 p.m., which caused us to lose some revenue," Rader says. "But we more than made up for that with the good-will we created in the community and publicity we received."

For J&J Amusements, of course, it gave the company a chance to see how its kart held up under severe stress -- 24 straight hours of operation.

Setting a world record for endurance helps the evaluation.
